INTEGRATED YOUTH SERVICES HUBS

Integrated Services, Central Location

HOMEBASE hubs are visible spaces in the community, providing a range of youth-targeted services under one roof. Focusing on prevention and early intervention, HOMEBASE hubs serve youth, ages 12-25, and their caregivers. Core services available include mental health and addiction services; physical health services; education, employment and training supports; peer supports; cultural and traditional supports; and social and community services.

Accessible, Inclusive

HOMEBASE hubs are safe, welcoming and inclusive spaces, designed for youth, by youth. They are a trusted and reliable point of access to a range of service and supports, all provided at no cost. Hubs operate extended hours, including evenings and weekends. Services are available in-person, by walk-in or by appointment or virtually. Information, services and programming are available online, at www.homebasesask.ca

A team of service providers work together to support youth in addressing their needs, using culturally-safe and evidence-based approaches. Services can be adjusted, as needs increase or decrease over time. Youth and their caregivers have choice in how, when and how often they'd like to access HOMEBASE services.

"My experiences as a youth accessing mental health and addiction services have been frustrating, because of the lack of timely and available services. I am excited for HOMEBASE to bring more accessible services to our youth in Saskatchewan."

"To me, HOMEBASE means delivering accessible services that promote the wellbeing of youth and encourage connection with no barriers or stigma!"

For Youth – By Youth

Youth are key partners in all aspects of HOMEBASE hubs. There are many opportunities for youth to have their say in shaping HOMEBASE's resources and services, both locally and provincially.

Engaged Communities, Dedicated Staff

HOMEBASE hubs are operated by community-based organizations, with dedicated, professional staff providing the services. Strong community partnerships and collaborations further strengthen HOMEBASE's ability to address challenges youth are facing and support their success.
